

EQMal: a new European malacological association

EQMal (European Quaternary Malacologists) is an organization established in association with the Subcommittee on European Quaternary Stratigraphy of INQUA (SEQS). The aim of EQMal is to stimulate exchange of knowledge on European Quaternary malacology, including taxonomy, palaeoecology, stratigraphy, palaeogeography, dating, European correlations, and so on. EQMal will consider the Quaternary in the broad sense.

The "EQMal Newsletter" is issued to further these aims. Initially, the newsletter will appear yearly and contain the membership list, references published during the year, news and views of members, news on localities, and announcements of forthcoming meetings etc.

Members are recommended to participate in meetings of SEQS and of Unitas Malacologia. Membership is free for active contributors to the subject.

If you are interested to join us, please write to:

T. Meijer

Rijks Geologische Dienst

Postbus 157

2000 AD Haarlem, The Netherlands

Phone: +31 (0)23 300 351; Fax: +31 (0)23 351 614 .

EMail: T.Meijer@RGD.NL

Please give us your name adress, telehone, fax-, and EMail nrs.

T. Meijer (Haarlem, The Netherlands) & R.C. Preece (Cambridge, U.K.)